Students Restoring Louisiana's Wetlands

In the future, restoration of Louisiana's wetlands will require more students like those at Assumption Catholic High School, who are working to restore the wetlands to their former condition. These students are learning about the importance of wetlands and the need to preserve them for the future. They are also participating in field trips to study the wetlands and learn about the various species that live there. The students are working with local organizations and businesses to raise awareness about the importance of wetlands and to find ways to restore them. They are also working on a project to create a wetland wetland at the school, which will serve as a model for other schools in the area. The students are dedicated to preserving the wetlands for future generations and are working hard to make a difference in their community.
