

From the Times-Picayune – November 23, 2008

Saints quarterback Drew Brees leads Pro Bowl balloting -- and other Jazz and Razz.

Posted by The Times-Picayune editorial staff November 23, 2008 3:10AM

Susan Poag / The Times-Picayune Saints quarterback Drew Brees.

JAZZ: Saints quarterback DREW BREES is leading with fans voting for the Pro Bowl. With five weeks to go, he has 490,844 votes -- the most of any player in the NFL and well in the lead among NFC quarterbacks. Fans, coaches and players all vote, with each group counting for a third.

JAZZ: Epidemiologist ELIZABETH "TERRY" FONTHAM, dean of the LSU Health Sciences Center's School of Public Health, was installed Thursday as president of the American Cancer Society. She's the first non-physician to hold that post in the group's 96 year history and the third woman.

JAZZ: Louisiana State University's COASTAL ROOTS program has put 35 wetlands nurseries in schools across the state, including 14 in the metro area, the most recent at ARCHBISHOP CHAPELLE HIGH SCHOOL in Metairie. The program has contributed 21,000 plants to wetlands and also integrates hands-on awareness of coastal erosion into science education.

Print This Page | Send To A Friend | Permalink \(Learn More\)

Share: Reddit | Digg | del.icio.us | Google | Yahoo | What is this?